Cotton in Europe

Wilmer & Smith's European Times for October 4th, contains the Manchester circular of Messrs. Geo. Fraser & Son, from which we make the following interesting facts:

The extraordinary excitement which existed in our market at the date of our last report continued without abatement for a few days longer, during which cotton at Liverpool was largely dealt in at constantly augmenting prices, until at the highest moment Middling Orleans cotton was sold at the enormous price of 9¾d. per lb., and all other descriptions commanded prices proportionately as high, or nearly so. In our own market both yarns and goods careered with equal buoyancy, and the most unheard of advances were demanded from day to day, or, more correctly speaking, from hour to hour, the transactions being increasingly large, and the disposition to purchase constantly more eager, as prices mounted upwards under the influence of the speculative feeling.

And at the present moment the tone of the market is particularly strong, as not only is it thought that the war in America will be protracted but also that very favorable telegrams may at any moment be received from India in response to the excited accounts sent there towards the end of August. In this expectancy many holders have withdrawn their stocks from the market, except at prices too extreme to be as yet listened to by buyers.

The prospects for our operative classes during the coming winter are most gloomy; indeed, they are so to all—except those who have the boldness to speculate and run their speculations to a successful issue—engaged in the cotton trade. It has been urged that because temporally the imports of cotton into Liverpool are larger than the consumption, that the cotton crisis is being tided over, and that our way can now dimly be seen through the existing difficulty. What may be in store for us after the next four months have passed, we will not venture to prophesy; but if the statement made by Mr. Laing is worthy of attention—and we know of no authority whose dictum is entitled to greater, or to so great, respect as to the present capabilities of India, that we must not look for a larger export thence during the next season than 1¼ million of bales, the hope for the succeeding spring is little better than the certainty for the present winter.

The only way out of the present crisis is through the American crop, the great bulk of which would have reached us, and might even yet become available, without either "recognition" or "intervention," but for the Quixotic policy of her Majesty's Government in closing our ports and those of our colonies to privateers and their prizes. But for this step the South would in all probability have been as strong on the sea as the North, or stronger, the blockade of the ports would have been rendered impossible, the cotton crop would have much of it come forward, our mills would have been kept at work, our operatives employed, and North and South might have fought out their quarrel to their heart's content without inflicting unmerited and unnecessary pauperism and starvation on masses of our people connected directly and indirectly with our cotton industry.

The Capture Near Manassas.

The Abolition prisoners captured by a detachment of our cavalry on Friday last reached this city yesterday morning by the Central train, and were marched to the Libby prison. The circumstances of this capture were substantially given to our readers yesterday, but we have received some additional particulars, from which it appears that a detachment of the 13th Virginia Cavalry, detailed by Colonel Chambliss for that purpose, made a dash upon the Orange and Alexandria Railroad between Bull Run and Manassas Junction, and after tearing up the rails for some distance, placed obstructions upon the track, with the object of throwing off an approaching train. Soon afterwards the Quartermaster's train came along, on the way to the Junction, to procure wood, and, encountering the obstructions, was thrown down an embankment and pretty well smashed up. During the confusion which ensued, our men rushed upon the affrighted Yankees and captured all on board, consisting of one captain, thirty four soldiers, and fifty-eight Quartermaster's men. Several of the enemy were killed, and we had two or three wounded by shots fired from the train just before it went down the embankment. Our men afterwards set fire to the wrecked train and utterly destroyed it.

THE ABOLITIONISTS IN WEST TENNESSEE.—A letter from Oxford, Miss., written by a gentleman who left Jackson, Tenn., October 17th, says:

"The Yankees have completely ruined the whole of West Tennessee. They have taken all the negroes and most of them North; they go from one plantation to another, and take them all, men, women and children. They send out from Jackson, every morning, from one to two hundred wagons, into the fields of the farmers, and take all their corn, fodder and oats without paying them for it.

"I am glad to say that they treat those who pretend, since they came into the country, to be Union men, worse than they do the old and rabid secessionists."

A Yankee Camp Surprised and Captured.

A despatch has been received here from Gen. T. J. Jackson, (says the Richmond Enquirer,) stating that Gen. Stuarts with Fitzhugh Lee's brigade, surprised the camp of Col. Bayard, near Leesburg, on Sunday last, took seventy one prisoners and the entire encampment.

The dispatch also states that the enemy are concentrating in large force in Loudoun county.

Greeley in Ecstacies.

Horace is delighted at the removal of General Buell. Hear him:

Gen. Buell is deprived of his command! The President did this once before; but the Kentucky fossils all protested that it would disorganize the Army in Kentucky, and he gave way to them. The consequence was that Bragg, Kirby Smith, Humphrey Marshall & Co, devastated the richest part of their State, pitched two of their Divisions upon one of Buell's, and fought an undecisive battle with it, then moved off unharmed from under Buell's very nose, escaping into Tennessee with a good share of their plunder. This was too much, and the President has now removed Buell and put the fighting Rosecrans into his place. He could hardly have done better.

Be patient a very little while, and all the "augers that won't bore" will be served as Buell has been. There is to be no going into Winter quarters till the back of the Rebellion shall have been broken, and sluggards and traitors must stand from under. The Union must and will be saved, not by surrendering to the traitors, but by making them surrender to it. "Wait a little longer."

The Next News from Europe.

The steamship Hibernian, from Londonderry on the 17th of October, passed Cape Rice last Wednesday morning on her way to Quebec. She has news five days later than the advices of the Australasian; but the sea was so heavy off Newfoundland, in consequence of the recent gale, that it was quite impossible for the agent at that point to board her and obtain it. We shall probably receive the news by the next file of Northern papers, perhaps in a day or two.—Richmond Whig.

OLD ABE GETS OFF ANOTHER JOKE.—A couple of Abolitionists having called upon Old Abe to persuade him to issue his Emancipation Proclamation—that is, before he issued it—he got off the following good thing and knock down argument against his own act:

"You remember the slave who asked his master—if I should call a sheep's tail a leg, how many legs would it have?—Five.' 'No, only four, for my calling the tail a leg would not make it so.' Now, gentlemen, if I say to the slaves, 'you are free,' they will be no more free than at present."

TO PRINTERS.

Two or three good Compositors will hear of a good situation on a Daily paper by applying through the "Bulletin" office immediately. Nov 7—tf.

The ladies of Pitt county, North Carolina, have resolved not to send their children to any teachers who are exempt from conscription only because of being teachers. They wish, and very properly, to encourage schoolmistresses during the war.

Where schools are not accessible we hope that parents will bear in mind the duty of teaching their children themselves. One of the saddest consequences of war is its effects upon the coming generation—those who are destined soon to take charge of the liberties we acquire and the Government we establish. We will have fought and suffered in vain if those who come after us are incapable of appreciating and preserving the heritage we bequath them. There are not many families in which there is not at least one member capable of teaching the children. It would be cruel to deny to these young minds the precious food of education, simply because professional teachers are not at hand. Parents should permit nothing to make them oblivious of their duty in this all essential matter.

The above, which we copy from the Richmond Whig, contains wholesome advice and we hope the heads of families will profit by it.

We regret to record the fact that, by a law of the State of North Carolina, a large amount of the public treasure is squandered among a class of Pentioners operating under the head of the Literary Board and Fund, which ought at least during the continuance of the war, be abolished or suspended.

The $100,000 spoils could more appropriately disbursed among the starving families of our poor men who are fighting our battles, and assist in clothing and shoeing our warriors, than having it distributed among a class of men who pride themselves upon their otium cum dignitate, able to enter the service of the country yet fattening upon the spoils of office.

The Legislature during its next sitting, we hope, will pass a law diverting the fund to a more useful channel until the country is again enjoying peace and prosperity.

The Press.

The Richmond Enquirer, speaking of the common notion that everybody has a right to publish what he pleases, at the publisher's expense and not his own, says very forcibly:

The press is only free to its editors, add to those whom its editors believe to have good ground for addressing the public and something to say which the public has an interest in hearing. We would recommend those who labor under this mistake to consider the following fact: that newspapers are made for the large class who read, and not for the small class who want to write. The idea that when a man subscribes for a newspaper, he lays its proprietor under some obligation, or that he has a right to publish his communications therein with the single proviso that they shall be unoffensive, is a popular fancy and a most rediculous mistake, which ought to be corrected. Not only has he no such right, but the editor who permits him to put uninteresting matter in his columns infringes upon the rights of four or five thousand other people to gratiiy the one individual. Very few editors act so absurdly.

Gen. Stuart's Operations.

A despatch has been received at Richmond from Gen. Thos. J. Jackson, stating that Gen. Stuart, with Fitzhugh Lee's brigade, surprised the camp of Colonel Bayard, near Leesburg, on Sunday last, and took seventy-one prisoners and the entire encampment.

The Lynchburg Virginian, of Tuesday, says General Stuart had telegraphed to that place that he had been engaged with the enemy near Upperville, and also somewhere in Loudoun. He says that they have been fighting for several days. The Virginian states that the General's child was to be buried Tuesday, but the stern duties of war keep the bereaved father away from the opening grave of the loved and lost. Such is war. The following notice appears in the same number of the Virginian:

The funeral of Flora, daughter of Flora and Gen. J. E. B. Stuart, will take place this evening at 3½ o'clock, p. m., from the residence of Major John S. Langhorne.

Our Generals on the Battle Field.

The Knoxville Register relates the following:

We overheard two soldiers on yesterday criticising the appearance and conduct of the Generals. One belonged to General Polk's and the other to Cheatham's wing of the army. Gen. Polk's encomiast swore that the gallant Louisianian moved about like a Locomotive whenever danger was most imminent—that they never winced when a shell came screaming by. Gen Cheatham's man said that his General grew grand on the battle field, that all his majesty revealed itself as he rode along the serried ranks—By G—d said the scarred, half-clad veteran—"he looked like a meetin' house."

☞ Singular things occur in war times. The following is queer enough to be recorded:

When Harper's Ferry was surrendered the rebels, of course, took possession of all the movable property there, except the clothing of the paroled prisoners. The paroled officers and men, being destitute of transportation, borrowed of Stonewall Jackson twenty-one wagons and teams, only a few hours previously the property of Uncle Sam. The loan was accompanied with the stipulation that the wagons and teams should be returned. They will leave hear for General McClellan's headquarter's, whence they will be sent, under a flag of truce, to the rebel lines. On the whole, though of course according to rules, this strikes us as being a very note-worihy proceeding.

Advance of the Enemy in the East.

From the Raleigh State Journal.]

By passengers by yesterday evening's train we have further particulars of the skirmish near Hamilton and of the operations of the Yankees as they advanced. For the following facts we are indebted to a friend who witnessed a portion of what he recites:

The enemy having landing large forces at Washington on Sunday morning advanced towards Hamilton, their advance guard consisting of about 3,000 infantry, several pieces of artillery and three companies of the "White Horse" cavalry. Three companies of the 26th N. C. Troops, Colonel Burgwyn, occupied Williamston on that morning, the remainder of his regiment being at Rawl's Mill. On learning the advance of the Yankees and that he was likely to be cut off, Col. B. fell back to Old Ford and subsequently to Rawl's, hotly pressed by the enemy's cavalry. Before he could join the remainder of the regiment the charge of the enemy's cavalry took place, mentioned in our notice of yesterday. Twice did the three companies of the gallant 26th repulse the entire advance guard, which is represented as composed wholly of new levies, and which would not stand the fire of the 26th. Of course a mere handful of men could not resist the advance of so large a body, and after firing nine rounds into them and killing and wounding about 150 (as was subsequently learned,) the 26th fell back in excellent order to within a few miles of Tarboro.'

The Yankees now have possession of Hamilton, or rather what was Hamilton—for we understand they have almost obliterated the town—firing buildings, demolishing what escaped the flames, and committing the most horrible outrages upon all ages and both sexes.

Their force at Hamilton is ascertained to be 10,000 intantry, 40 pieces of artillery and a large force of cavalry. Our troops are moving and will bring these fellows to a reckoning to-day, if the fight has not already taken place.

It would be imprudent in us to disclose what we knew of the movements of our troops; but we are safe in assuring the public that the next they will hear of the Yankees now at Hamilton, or such of them as may escape, will be under the cover of their gunboats on the Pamlico. Gen. Martin is at the head of our forces, assisted by other distinguished generals, and Gov. Vance is at Tarboro' encouraging the men by his presence.

The losses of the 26th reported by us yesterday, at 10 killed and 30 wounded, is now said to be about correct. The wounded number 29, the killed 10.

The 17th and 59th, did not participate in the fight beyond the firing of a few scattered shots, and Tucker's cavalry were on duty elsewhere. We hope to have a letter from our army correspondent in that quarter in a day or two.

We are happy to learn that our troops have succeeded in bringing with them a set of the most notorious scoundrels unhung, captured in Beaufort, Pitt, Martin, &c. They number some sixty, it is said, as rank traitors as ever graced a sapling. We have heard but four of their names, viz: H. M. Davenport, E. W. Jones, Wilson Lamb and Abernathy Hall. Lamb is an unmitigated villain, it is said. He has made a fine business of forging Bowie Knives, &c., for the Yankees, and has not only always refused to help or assist his countrymen, but has always assisted in hunting them down and betraying them. Of the others we have no particulars except that they are notorious Buffaloes.

Gen. Foster is reported to be in command of the Yankee expedition.

The following items of news we copy from the Raleigh Standard.

STILL FURTHER.—At the last moment we learn from an entirely reliable source that the Yankees went up the Roanoke river in their gunboats, on Wednesday last and landed in force near Palmyra, Halifax County. This place is only 25 or 30 miles from Weldon.

Gen. Pettigrew is said to be in command at Weldon with a good force. If so, we have good hope of success.

A Fight in North Carolina.

Correspondence of the Petersburg Express.]

TARBORO', Nov. 3d, 1862.

DEAR EXPRESS: Our community has been in a high state of excitement for 24 hours, in consequence of a thousand and one rumors which greet the ear at each corner of the village, respecting a battle fought yesterday, between our troops and a Yankee column just below Williamston, Martin county. From the most reliable reports to be obtained, and they come from an officer in charge of eight of our wounded, who reached here at sunset, we learn that a force supposed to have consisted of at least five thousand Abolitionists, marched from Washington to a point on the Roanoke river below Williamston, to cut off the 17th and 57th Regiments stationed near by, and some miles below Plymouth.

Four companies of the 26th Regiment, commanded by Col. Burgwyn, stationed near Williamston, encountered the whole Yankee force, and kept them at bay during the whole day, giving time for the 17th and 59th to come up; and last night the entire Confederate forces, including cavalry and artillery had reached the scene, and offered battle to the enemy, who fell back in order to prevent a fight. The skirmishing and shelling was kept up by the four companies and gunboats until 10 o'clock, p. m. Our entire force fell back last night to Spring Green, below Williamston, to prevent a flank movemont by reinforcements from Washington.

Our loss is reported two killed and thirty one wounded, most of them very slightly. The Yankee loss was very heavy—one entire cavalry company cut up and destroyed.

The road is said to be entirely blocked up with dead horses and men belonging to the celebrated White Horse company, which has so long proven a terror to the people of Washington.

A large number of troops have arrived to-day, and hurried off to the seat of war in the adjoining county.

Yours, P.

Second N. C. Cavalry—Another Haul of Live Yankees & other Booties.

Major Clinton M. Andrews, 2nd N. C. Cavalry, makes the following report to his Excellency, Gov. Vance:

HEADQUARTERS 19TH REGIMENT N. C. T.
Warrenton, Va., Oct. 29th 1862.

To His Excellency Gov. Vance:

SIR: I have the honor to report to you the success of the 2d N. C. Cavalry in a recent scout through the enemy's lines about Centreville, Va.

With six companies of the regiment, I was ordered to make the scout. Soon after sun up on Saturday morning, (having ridden for 18 hours without rest,) I advanced to the Centreville pike, and there saw evident signs of a force having passed. I learned from citizens that a force of cavalry and artillery had passed early in the night, and that it was followed by a guarded train of Yankee wagons. I got the forces all right and commenced the chase.

After going about one mile we ran up with their videttes. They (as we afterwards learned) supposed us to be their rear force, and halted my advanced guard. I withheld the charge by the guard, and ordered forward the first squadron, commanded by Capt. Randolph. At the command, off we dashed, and after a chase of about two miles, we got every man (but one) and all the teams and wagons.

Result—1 Lieutenant, 27 men, 24 mules, 32 horses, 7 wagons, loaded with sugar, coffee, pork, crackers and oats. All saved and not a man hurt on our side.

The prize, worth over $20,000, was pushed in advance (driven by miserable Yankees) before either their advanced force in the rear, consisting of 1,500 troopers and four pieces of artillery, could catch us. We had not been in Warrenton more than thirty minutes, till a courier came dashing in, with news that "the enemy" in strong force was coming to Warrenton. I had two pieces of artillery attached to our regiment, and with it and the regiment we made a stand. The enemy did not come, and we put after them, as they were in the road three miles off, but they skedaddled double quick. We have coffee, and sweetening too, every day now.

News from Louisiana.

The following extract from a private letter from a South Carolinian, who has a planing interest in Louisiana, is communicated to the Courier:

COLLINSBURG, LA., Oct. 16, 1862.

The crops, particularly the corn, will be pretty good, and an abundance made for market, as but little Cotton was planted, and that is but indifferent—I might say a complete failure.

The people in this section will be able to live, as they will have plenty of provisions, and a good supply of salt, made on Lake Bistenau. The planters generally are making their own salt. They have been making over 3,000 bushels per day. It has been selling from four to six dollars per bushel. The great run of persons coming in from Mississippi, Arkansas, Texas, and some from Alabama, has kept up the price. Any quantity of it could be made if the right kind of kettles could be had—that is, large boilers. Many are making salt in three and four gallon pots. It is slow, but sure. We can yet buy good sugar at seven to nine cents per pound, and molasses at thirty-five to forty cents at Shumpert. There is any amount of these articles stored up there. I only wish you had it all in South Carolina. It would help out.

This section is pretty well represented in the army. All from eighteen to thirty-five are off, and those from thirty-five to forty-five are expecting to go. It leaves our country very bare of men. Some planters are without overseers, as they cannot be had.

THE SEMINOLES.—From the most reliable information we can obtain, says the Tallahassee Floridian of Saturday last, we are inclined to believe that the rumors in regard to the hostile position of the remnant of Seminole Indians in South Florida are without foundation. We learn that a short time since Sam Jones either became or pretended to be alarmed on account of not being able to purchase clothing, powder, &c., from the settlements near him, fearing that it indicated an intention on the part of the whites to make war upon his tribe, and he sent a messenger into Tampa, requesting an interview with an officer of the government, to explain to him and his people the real meaning of the usual supplies being withheld from them. The interview was granted, and the war existing between the North and the South explained to them—and the great difficulty that the people of the South experienced in procuring necessary articles, in consequence of the blockade. They professed to be satisfied, and wrote a letter to the commanding General of this Department, which has been forwarded to Gen. Beauregard, in which, it is said, they offer to become allies of the Confederates.

☞ In the Columbus (Ga.) Sun of Thursday, we find the following:

Mayor Monroe, of New Orleans, died a few weeks since, from the effects of his imprisonment at Ship Island, where he suffered with neglect all manner of want and torture of mind and body inflicted by the Beast whose name has become a synonym for infamy and humen depravity.

This, we think, is a mistake. A gentleman recently from New Orleans informs us that just before his departure he saw members of Mr. Monroe's family, who told him that Mr. M. was still in confinement, wearing a ball and chain, but that they had heard nothing of his death.

[Mobile Register

A CONFLICT OF AUTHORITY.—The Chattanoogo Rebel contains the following announcement:

Governor Brown, of Georgia' has again come in conflict with Confederate authority by the action of the Superintendant of the Western & Atlantic Railroad, in refusing transportation for some fifty barrels of whiskey, in accordance with a proclamation of the Governor in relation thereto.

We understand that an agent is on the way to Georgia to take possession of this road for the enforcement of this transportation, as well as for other purposes. We await the issue with some curiosity, if things are as we understand them.

BY TELEGRAPH.

☞ We received nothing by Telegraph up to the hour of putting our 1st Edition to press.

INSTANCE OF REAL CHIVALRY.—The following is a copy of a note which we received from Gen. B. S. Briggs, of this State, and which tells its own story. We take pleasure in recording any instance in which the horrors of war are softened by an act of genuine courtesy and kindness:

"HEADQ'RS PALMETTO SHARPSHOOTERS,
Col. H. S. Briggs, Col. 10th Reg't Mass. Vols:

COLONEL—Having obtained from one of my men a medallion containing, I presume the likenesses of your family, I return the same to you. The medallion was found in your camp, in which my regiment slept the night after the battle of Saturday, the 31st of May. Though willing to meet you ever in the field while acting as a foe to my country, I do not war with your personal feelings. I, supposing the medallion prized by you, take pleasure in returning it.

M. JENKINS,
Palmetto Sharpshooters."

[Boston Journal.

COTTON IN NEW ORLEANS.—The New Orleans Advocate takes a very discouraging view of the commercial prospects of that city. The editor says:

It is not of much use to talk about the prospect of the New Orleans cotton market for this season, but for the information of Northern dealers and manufacturers in general, European spinners, one and all, we can say that there is not the least prospect of a thousand bales being received here this autumn. Those parties who were sent out as agents to ascertain the position of the cotton market of the great Southwestern emporium, will of course learn the gloomy condition of affairs.

This war will probably result in assigning New England the place she has earned—of containing the most restless, grasping, mischief-making and faithless people in the world. It is undoubtedly the hotbed in which the troubles of the late Union were grown. The people of the States of the Northern Confederacy, who deplore their present condition, denounce New England particularly and generally.

Horatio Seymour in a late speech said, "New England has given us an Arnold, whilst Virginia has given us a Washington." In naming these as representatives of the two localities, the bitterness of the contempt which is expressed for New England could not be added to.

TO THE LADIES.

NEW PARIS STYLES!!—NEW PARIS STYLES!!!

WE would call the particular attention of the citizens to our MILLINERY DEPARTMENT. We flatter ourselves that our stock in that line will vie successfully with any in the Southern Confederacy. Our Frames and Materials and Ladies' and Misses HATS are recent importations, and got up in the most recent and approved styles in Paris. Our stock is acknowledged superior, from the fact that we are daily receiving orders from the principal cities of the Confederacy. Our Head Milliner (Miss Kerr, of Charleston,) is a lady of acknowledged refined taste, and our customers uniformly and unanimously join in rendering to her that meed of praise which her efforts to please justly deserve. With so many excellencies united in this department of our business, we cannot fail to fill with dispatch and entire satisfaction to the Ladies any orders we may receive from them.

A repetition of this offence will bring upon the offender a prosecution without regard to her age or sex.
